Agnes Mariakaki

A practical perspective on how to teach the skills of originality, imagination, and problem solving in class, to fuel the ability of kids to learn through curiosity and joy rather than through pressure and obligation. And in addition, teaching the skills of self reflection and internal dialogue will help them to apply themselves and to keep going through the tough stages of learning mastery.

Agnes Mariakaki has a Master’s degree in Psychology from the University of Lancaster, UK. She holds a Master’s in Non Verbal Communication, Synergology Institute France. She is a graduate of the Paul Ekman Emotional Intelligence Academy, UK.

Agnes is a Certified NLP Trainer with Richard Bandler, Certified Lego Serious Play Facilitator, Post Traumatic Stress Disorder Expert with the University of Alberta, Canada.

“Use your imagination”

Jeanne Perrett

Imagination goes much further than believing in elves and dragons. Being able to visualize ourselves positively helps us to become better teachers and more successful learners. It enables us to cope with anything which life throws at us and to empathize with others. Creativity isn’t confined to ‘The Arts’ and developing our imagination can enhance everything we do from loading up a supermarket trolley to marking piles of homework!

Jeanne Perrett has over thirty years’ experience in the language teaching sector and has significant experience in teaching children and training teachers. She is the author of a wide range of English language course-books for primary and pre-primary classes as well as children’s novels. She has been living and working in Greece since 1981 and has five gorgeous grandchildren.
